A SUMMARY OF THE BUSINESS LOCATION NUREMBERG

Business Location Nuremberg

For centuries, Nuremberg has been the home to inventive genius and entrepreneurial spirit. Today the city is an important center for high-tech, industrial and innovative service industries. Established economic sectors in the areas of IT, transportation, automation, medicine, health care, energy and environment all contribute to the success of Nuremberg. Technology-driven services and contributions from the cultural and creative industries rank among the strongest growth sectors of the economy. This contributes to the region ranking among the most dynamic high-tech centers of Europe.

Positive Future Prospects.

As one of the largest economic regions, Nuremberg offers a diverse and stable business structure. The area maintains an active start-up sector, a wealth of global players and hidden champions in all of the sustainable high-tech and industry sectors, dynamic service providers, modern production sites and small enterprises. This balanced mix creates an excellent economic base for vocational success and ideal conditions for well-trained professionals.

A step ahead of the dynamics of innovation.

Continuous global change, digitized economies, growing scarcity of resources:
The groundbreaking answers to the challenges of the future are developing in Nuremberg. The principle of open innovation supports networking and the transfer of know-how among leaders and trendsetters in the scientific, research and business sectors.
Within a 100 km radius, there are over 30 universities with more than 150,000 students.
Ideal conditions for getting future markets moving.

Nuremberg's success is based on balance.

Not only are the working conditions in Nuremberg optimal, living here is also an exceptional experience. Here a half-million residents enjoy a high quality of life with all of the benefits of a modern, cosmopolitan city. From its vast array of recreational activities and its exciting cultural life, Nuremberg offers something for everyone throughout the year.

Identifying and promoting potential. (Creative thinking + Progress)

New ideas are the foundation of all innovation. Through open dialogue and hands-on support, Nuremberg provides the "extra plus" that is required to turn opportunity into success. By attracting and actively promoting talent, continuously improving framework conditions and offering new prospects to professionals in all areas, Nuremberg is well on the way to becoming the innovation capital of the future. Be a part of it!

D Information and Tips on “Living and Working in Germany”	29

A IMPORTANT FIRST STEPS

Before you can live and work in Nuremberg, there are several subjects that must be promptly addressed. The next section provides an overview of the important initial steps that need to be taken at the local level.

1. Resident Registry Office and Registration Card

New citizens of Nuremberg must record a valid address at the Resident Registry Office (Einwohneramt) within one and one-half weeks of arrival. This also applies to accompanying family members. The registration must be completed in person with a passport or an identity card or may be submitted by mail. An official registration form must be used when completing this task. Power of attorney, or the nomination of proxy, is not possible.

2. Immigration Authority and Resident Permit

Provided that you entered Germany with a visa, you must submit a request for a Resident Permit with employment permissions to the Immigration Authority before the visa expires. It is recommended that appointments are made at least four to six weeks in advance of this date.

Entry to Germany - Visa or no visa?

Citizens of the European Union do not require a visa. The same applies to countries belonging to the European Economic Area, otherwise known as EWR countries (Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway) and Switzerland. Visas are also not required for citizens of the so-called privileged countries of Australia, Israel, Japan, Canada, the Republic of Korea, New Zealand and the United States. While citizens from these countries do not need a visa, they nonetheless require the residency and work permits available for application at the Immigration Authority.

The electronic residency permit (eAT) was introduced on September 1, 2011. The eAT records biometric data; therefore applications must be made in person. The application process incurs various fees. Cost inquiries can be made at the Immigration Authority.

The following documents are required for the application process:

- Valid passport
- Proof of secured income
- Sufficient accommodation
- Health insurance coverage
- Proof of residency purpose; for example, an employment contract

The “EU Blue Card”

The “EU Blue Card” is a temporary resident permit available to skilled workers for living and working in Germany. The policy of the European Union was implemented into German law on August 1, 2012 through the adoption of the highly-qualified directives.

Third-country nationals may also apply for the “EU Blue Card” Third-country nationals are citizens from all countries, excepting the European Union, Switzerland, Iceland, Liechtenstein and Norway.

The following requirements must be fulfilled:

- German university degree or an internationally accepted degree or diploma, which is comparable to the traditional German degree.
- A current annual gross salary of at least 53,600 Euro. However, the gross salary may be less (at least 41,808 Euro) in the case of shortage occupations (for example, skilled workers in the areas of natural sciences, mathematics, engineering, medicine and information or communication technologies).

The income requirements have been calculated for the year 2019 and may be subject to change!

3. Money and Banking

Opening a bank account

You need a German bank account to access your wages or to rent an apartment. It is recommended that you call the financial institution of your choice to set up an appointment for opening a bank account. In most cases, the following documents are required:

- Registration card from the Resident Registry Office (Einwohneramt)
- Resident permit
- Valid personal identification card/passport
- Wage statement from employer, if applicable

With these documents, you may apply for a checking account and an EC card at the bank of your choice.

It pays to compare

Many banks charge different fees, from either account management to individual money transfers. Some banks may also issue fees unless every month a set amount of money (approximately the monthly wage) is not deposited into the account. Therefore, it pays to compare the various conditions when choosing a bank.

Online-Banking

An alternative to a checking account is an online account. These accounts may be opened either through the internet or at the post office. An online account functions similarly to a German checking account and likewise offers IBAN and BIC payments. Money transfers to and from foreign countries are also possible.

Debit/Bank Cards

At a cash machine, you may withdraw money at any time with your EC Card and your four-digit Personal Identification Number (PIN). You will receive your PIN by mail from your bank after you have opened an account. You can pay with an EC Card at most businesses and gas stations. However, it is advisable to always have some cash on hand: Germany still strongly relies on cash transactions. Small sums in stores and restaurants are most often still paid in cash.

4. National Insurance

Germany is home to a well-established social welfare system. As an employee contributing to the statutory national insurance system, you are protected against general risks such as illness, occupational accidents, unemployment or old age. Following is a list of the benefits of the national social security system:

- The statutory health insurance pays the cost of visiting a doctor as well as the costs of medicine and therapeutic measures.
- The statutory nursing insurance offers basic coverage in the event that you require nursing care as a result of an illness. This usually applies to the elderly.
- The statutory annuity insurance pays employees a pension upon retirement. The sum of the pension corresponds to the contributions paid into the annuity fund.
- The statutory indemnity/accident insurance covers the expenses for medical treatment and rehabilitation after an accident on the job or an occupational illness.
- The statutory unemployment insurance provides income for a set period of time for the unemployed, generally when the individual has been insured for at least one year within the past two year period and continues to seek work. In addition, the Federal Employment Agency (Bundesagentur für Arbeit, BA) offers consultation and referral services to anyone seeking work.

National insurance employees are service providers for questions concerning the social welfare system. As a municipal insurance agency, the services of the insurance agency are available to all citizens of Nuremberg. The services are also available to individuals working in Nuremberg, regardless of location of residence.

In Germany, foreign nationals may receive child benefits as long as they have a permanent resident permit or additional residency documents. Citizens of the European Union and selected other countries may be eligible for child benefits without a permanent resident permit. More information is available at the Federal Employment Agency (Bundesagentur für Arbeit, BA) under family benefits.

In most cases, the following documents are required for application:

- Completed and signed application
- Birth certificate
- Written declaration of child's membership in household
- Child's school, vocational training or university records
- If applicable, income statement of the child

6. Driving Licence

Citizens of the European Union, Liechtenstein, Norway and Iceland are not required to have driving licences transferred. Driving privileges remain as in the native country. However, transcriptions can be performed on a voluntary basis. Exceptions include temporary five-year licences for trucks and buses (Classes C and D). In the case that one has held an unrestricted foreign driving licence over five years, then trucks and buses may only be driven an additional six months. This applies to trucks over 7,5 t (Classes C1 and C1E), and for drivers over 50 years of age.

Third-country citizens and selected other states, according to Sections 28 and 31 under Annex 11 of the German Driving Licence Regulations (Fahrerlaubnisverordnung FeV), are permitted to drive with their existing driving licence for six months after establishing legal residence in Germany. An extension of the six-month period is possible when the driver can prove that they will not be residing in Germany for longer than 12 months. After this time period, a German driving licence is required. Generally, members of third countries must pass a theoretical and practical exam when transferring foreign-issued driving licences. The exams may be partially or wholly waived for citizens of countries described in Annex 11 under Sections 28 und 31 of the FeV. The German driving licence will only be issued upon surrender of the foreign licence.

7. Commercial Activities

Private businesses must be registered. Registration requirements apply not only to company headquarters, but also to branch offices or stores. Registration is also required for part-time commercial activity. Selected commercial enterprises also require permits (for example, restaurants, travel, security, auction trading and real estate industries, pawn shops and property developers). All managing partners in business structures such as BGB, oHG, and KG are considered suppliers or sellers.

The beginning of a commercial enterprise must be indicated as well as any changes in business activity or operating facilities within the City of Nuremberg. Closure or relocation to another municipality must also be reported. For the registration, there is a standardized national form.

8. Authentication of Documents

With the authentication of documents, it is officially confirmed that a copy (Abschrift) matches the original record (Urschrift). With the authentication of signatures, the validity of the signatures is officially confirmed.

The Citizen Information Center (BürgerInformationsZentrum, BIZ) of the City of Nuremberg is entitled to officially verify copies (Abschriften) when the original document was issued by a public authority or when the duplicate is required for submission by such authorities; for example, with school and college degrees and vocational training certificates. Work references, training certificates, foreign birth records and marriage licences may also be officially authenticated.

Signatures may be verified when the signed, written document is required for presentation at the issuing authority. The signature must be made in the presence of an employee of the BIZ. Private contracts, financial and inheritance affairs (public authentications) may only be made by notary officials. With some documents, the approval of the validity of the copy may only be made by official authorities.

Please only bring original documents. The BIZ is required to make a copy of the original, which is created in-house from the existing document.

1. Housing

Whether it is a rental, bought or furnished property, Nuremberg offers a wide array of residential choices throughout the city in every price range. There are several options available in the first few weeks, before you have found an apartment. On average, hotels cost roughly 70 Euros per night in Nuremberg. A short-term furnished, two to three-room apartment costs approximately 400 to 1,000 Euro per month, depending on location. The Nuremberg youth hostel costs between 28 und 38 Euros per night. In addition, there are micro-apartments and boarding houses available in various price categories. Housing options can be found in the classified section of the newspaper or on real estate platforms, including:

2. Health and medical care

As an employee, you are automatically medically insured - either as a member of the statutory health insurance program or with a private insurance group. If you become sick, the health insurance company pays the costs of medical treatment. The basic coverage of the statutory insurance program includes the following services:

- Outpatient medical treatment, for example, in physicians' offices
- Dental care
- Medicine, remedies and aids

- Inpatient care and treatment, for example, in a hospital
- Medically-necessary rehabilitation
- Birth services for expectant mothers

There is free choice of medical practitioners in Germany. This means you are allowed to choose your own doctor. You only need to present your electronic health card, a type of insurance identification, when visiting a doctor.

Little or no costs are personally incurred as a member of the statutory health insurance system since the physician directly bills the insurance company. Nuremberg has a vast network of hospitals, doctors' offices and pharmacies.

A list of hospitals and clinics in Nuremberg is found on the following website:

<http://www.nuernberg.de/internet/gesundheitsamt/kliniken.html>

As the largest municipal clinic, the Nuremberg Hospital treats yearly 100,000 inpatient and just under 90,000 outpatient at both locations in the north and south of the city.

The Nuremberg Hospital has a website in English with specific information.

<https://www.klinikum-nuernberg.de/EN/>

In an emergency there are two possibilities: When in doubt, you should dial the telephone number 112 with serious illnesses. This is the number for ambulance and rescue services. In less serious cases, you may go directly to the emergency room of a hospital. Emergency services are available around the clock.

Options are available for medical emergencies outside of consultation hours. The largest on-call medical clinic in Nuremberg is located in the adcom-Center near the main train station. Here consultation and treatment is available from general practitioners as well as specialists.

3. Childcare, Schools and Families

Day care facilities

Children from the ages of 0 to 3 are cared for by trained practitioners in a crèche or nursery. These may be supported by either private, public or religious organizations. The kindergarten is the appropriate facility for children between 3 und 6 years of age. Costs differ and availability varies depending on the location within Nuremberg.

Another possibility for childcare is an independent day care provider (Tagesmutter or Tagesvater). Generally these providers care for several children within a private household.

There are registration deadlines and waiting periods for nurseries and kindergartens in Nuremberg. Therefore it is recommended to contact providers early to register on the waiting lists.

There are many family education centers (Familienbildungsstätten) in Nuremberg. Selected facilities are also internationally-oriented and offer information, consultation, courses and events for the entire family.

<http://www.familienbildung.nuernberg.de>

Nuremberg is a family-friendly city. In 2001, the first "Alliance for Families" (Bündnis für Familie) in Germany was launched here. As a family-friendly city, a proper life-work balance is important in Nuremberg.

Schools

In Germany, education is compulsory. Children between the ages of six and eighteen years must attend school. Transitional classes are available if the child cannot understand German well enough to participate. There is intensive German language support in the transitional classes that prepares the children for the school system. The state education authority (Staatliche Schulamt) is the responsible government entity.

Compulsory school attendance also applies to international and private schools. Generally, attending these types of schools is not free of cost.

International schools and kindergartens

There are many international companies and groups based in and around the City of Nuremberg employing a high number of foreign staff and executives. There is consequently demand in the area for good, internationally oriented schools that are tailored to the needs of young families living in a foreign country. These schools are also suitable for children who are being brought up in a multicultural environment.

4. Integration course, Language courses

Speaking German is necessary for active participation in everyday life and the labour market. Adequate language skills are required for successful integration.

The integration course is designed for those new to Nuremberg who lack the necessary German language speaking skills to handle everyday situations. The course may be voluntary or required, depending on the participant's country of origin and German language ability.

Every integration course includes a language course and an orientation course and totals 700 hours of instruction. The language course lasts 600 hours in order to provide students with sufficient knowledge of the German language. The remaining 100 hours of orientation addresses the legal system, culture and the history of Germany. Participation costs 1,365 Euros (1.95 Euro per hour of instruction).

The cost of the course may be waived for recipients of social assistance benefits under the SGB II (basic support for employment seekers) or beneficiaries of subsistence allowances under the SGB XII.

Who is eligible for Integration courses?

The Residence Act Section 44a, defines the conditions under which foreign nationals may be required to attend an integration course. Among others, deficits in basic German language skills are considered grounds for such a determination.

According to the Residence Act Section 44, adult foreign nationals that permanently reside in Bavaria are legally entitled to attend an integration course when they already hold a residency permit with work permissions, and either demonstrate need based on humanitarian grounds or in the context of family reunification, or have long-term residency status (EU). Eligibility of participation is verified by the registry office under the foreign national department.

The Federal Office for Migration and Refugees (Bundesamt für Migration und Flüchtlinge, BAMF) offers courses for other foreign nationals and their family members, provided space is available. Until recently, German citizens were not legally entitled to participation in integration courses, with the exception of ethnic German immigrants.

With the revision of Section 44, Paragraph 4 of the Residence Act, it is now possible for German citizens in need of integration services (for example, for those brought up abroad) to attend such courses.

5. Recognition of foreign professional qualifications

The “Law for the Assessment and Recognition of Foreign Professional Qualifications” (Berufsqualifikationsfeststellungsgesetz, BQFG) became effective on April 1, 2012. It established the legal entitlement of the review process for the recognition of equivalency of foreign vocational qualifications with comparable German professions.

Certification authorities are available nationwide for verification of foreign vocational qualifications. The existing responsibilities of chambers and public authorities have not changed with the adaptation of the BQFG. It is often difficult for persons requiring foreign certification to find the appropriate location for services. Therefore, nationwide contact points have been established. These contact points provide an initial orientation on the recognition process and refer individuals to the appropriate certification locations.

6. Family Migration

Spouses and children of EU citizens may live and work in Germany without restrictions. A special resident permit is not necessary.

Family members of third-country citizens may be granted a resident permit in order to establish and preserve family unity. Providing that,

- the family member (whom the relatives are joining, also called the principal member) holds a resident permit,
- has sufficient living quarters, and
- a secure income.

Which steps are required to bring family to Germany ?

- The spouse (and if applicable, children) applies for a resident permit with the intent of family reunion at the German embassy or consulate in the home country. Because the process takes time, it is important to familiarize yourself with the required documents and submit the application in a timely manner.
- Family members must be reported at the registry office and the responsible immigration authority upon arrival in Germany. You will need to compile passports, birth and marriage certificates, income or tax statements, as well rental evidence and other documents relevant to the circumstances of the family.

The resident permit of joining family members also entitles recipients to be gainfully employed (Resident Act, Section 27, Paragraph 5).

Does my family have to be able to speak German?

In most cases, the spouse must demonstrate basic German language skills in order to receive a resident permit. However, there are a number of exceptions to this general rule. Spouses may receive a resident permit despite lacking German language skills when

- You hold an "EU Blue Card",
- you are employed as a highly-qualified researcher or scientist or are self-employed, and the marriage occurred before relocation to Germany, and
- when there is a recognizable minimal integration requirement (for example, when the spouse holds an advanced degree),
- you are a citizen of Australia, Israel, Japan, Canada, the Republic of Korea, New Zealand or the United States of America.

7. Social Engagement and Communities

It is important for many citizens with migrant backgrounds to maintain their cultural and religious heritage. They may also want to teach their children about the traditions, language or religion of their native land. Therefore, it is meaningful to have local contact with fellow compatriots.

There are numerous intercultural meeting places and immigrant organizations in Nuremberg. Here people from different backgrounds, cultures, religions, age groups and nationalities can get together. In addition to social involvement, these organizations offer a variety of international activities - such as cultural festivals, recreational programs, sports, and educational and training support.

2. Programs for Children, Adolescents and Adults

Neighborhood cultural centers

Cultural centers (Kulturladen) are found in many Nuremberg neighborhoods and each reflects the individuality of the location. From the small castle in Almoshof to the modern passive house "südpunkt" in the south, a wide variety of cultural and recreational activities are offered. Whether as a visitor or organizer, these spaces are used for group meetings, courses, concerts, presentations and much more. A new cultural center, "Auf AEG", exists in the west of Nuremberg since 2016.

Musikschule Nürnberg

The music school of Nuremberg provides diverse programs for children as young as 18 months as well as for adolescents and adults. The school offers an ideal environment to network, meet new friends and through musical practice, build self-assurance.

<http://www.musikschule.nuernberg.de>

Field of Experiences for the Senses (Das Erfahrungsfeld der Sinne)

From May through September, "An adventure for all of your senses" is exhibited in the park grounds at Wöhrd Meadows (Wöhrder Wiese) and at the Hirsvogel bunker.

<http://www.erfahrungsfeld.nuernberg.de>

Culture for Children

For children, there are numerous opportunities for cultural participation. Whether it is a theatre performance at the local "Kindertheater ums Eck", seeing, tasting, touching and much more at Field of Experiences for the Senses, or creating art at the "Kinderkunstraum" - here there is something for everyone.

<http://www.kuf-kultur.de>

Kindertheater ums Eck

Performances of the children's theatre are spread over 30 locations throughout the city under the motto "short legs, short distances".

<http://www.kuf-kultur.de/kuf-angebote-projekte/kindertheaterreihe/nuernberger-kindertheaterreihe.html>

Sternenhaus

Taking part with family and friends in the various cultural programs for children at the "Sternenhaus" is especially attractive during the Advent season.

3. Museums and Exhibitions

Nuremberg offers a multi-faceted selection of museums: From the house of the world-renowned genius Albrecht Dürer to modern art in the Neues Museum, here culture and art enthusiasts find everything their hearts desire. The "Germanisches Nationalmuseum" in Nuremberg houses the largest collection of German art and culture and the Hirsvogel Hall is one of the most important examples of Renaissance architecture north of the Alps.

The Neues Museum and the Kunsthalle exhibit contemporary art. The history and culture of the machine age comes alive at the Museum for Industrial Culture and at the railway museum (DB Museum). The Toy Museum (Spielzeugmuseum) reflects the tradition of the city as a leading manufacturer of toys and the Imperial Castle of Nuremberg (Kaiserburg) attracts visitors with its permanent exhibition. However, smaller museums such as the Peace Museum Nuremberg, the Rotkreuz-Museum or the Weizenbiereglasmuseum are also worth visiting.

http://www.nuernberg.de/internet/portal/kultur/museen_in_nuernberg.html

4. Theatre and Opera

State Theatre (Staatstheater)

With the categories of opera, theatre and ballet, the Nuremberg State Theatre is an important central element of the city's theatre scene and is supplemented by numerous independent theatre companies.

Small stages and variety theatre

Great performances are not exclusive to large venues, but are also experienced on the numerous smaller stages and cabaret theatres. Here theatre groups win over audiences with enthusiasm and dedication, with imagination and endurance. Nuremberg offers a wide array of small-scale venues and theatre companies.

<http://www.nuernberg.de/internet/portal/kultur/kleinkunst.html>

Improvisation Theatre

Improvisation theatre refers to performances where an actor enters the stage not knowing the outcome. The audience determines the theme and the actors improvise the scenes. For many years, there has been a very active improv scene in Nuremberg and the surrounding area.

<http://www.nuernberg.de/internet/portal/kultur/improvisationstheater.html>

5. Cinema, Going Out and Nightlife

Movie Theatres

Nuremberg has much to offer cinema fans: In addition to the Filmhaus cinema in the Künstlerhaus, there are numerous art house venues as well as Germany's largest multiplex cinema, the Cinecitta.

<http://www.nuernberg.de/internet/portal/kultur/kinos.html>

Going Out and Nightlife

Whether day or night, it is never boring in Nuremberg thanks to the city's vast and diverse gastronomy scene and the many bars and nightclubs. From local specialties such as the original Nuremberg bratwurst or roasted pork shoulder with dumplings (Schäuferle mit Kloß) to vegetarian or vegan cuisine, Nuremberg offers something that appeals to every taste.

Life in Nuremberg is colorful year-round. Especially the green areas attract visitors in the summer: For example, the natural grassy riverbanks of the Pegnitz, that runs through the middle of the city, or the parks and the Zoo, which is one of Europe's largest and most scenic. Attractive destinations that are easily reached thanks to the regional transportation network include surfing at the Franconian Lakes or rock climbing in the Franconian Swiss area.

7. Shopping

There are approximately 3,500 retail shops in Nuremberg. Through the integration of modern city functions into the historical buildings of the medieval town center, Nuremberg has a special, unique flair as a retail shopping district.

Shopping is a relaxed pleasure in downtown Nuremberg. The generously proportioned pedestrian zones built in 1966 create one of Europe's largest continuous auto-free precincts. In the historic atmosphere of the city center, sightseeing can be easily combined with shopping in exclusive boutiques, glass arcades or department stores.

Nuremberg's pedestrian zones are unique in that they are not limited to one or two traffic-calmed streets. Many of the central boulevards of downtown such as "Kaiserstraße", "Breite Gasse" and "Karolinenstraße", offer leisurely shopping for all tastes and budgets.

Another special feature of the shopping city Nuremberg is the Craftman's Yard (Handwerkerhof). Traditional artisans such as pewterers, glass cutters and engravers, doll makers and leather workers offer their wares in the typically Franconian half-timbered atmosphere.

Opening hours:
